“ Tony & I were buddies in high school... only met when my parents' house burnt when I was in 11th grade. Blessings truly sometimes come through because of bizrare circumstances. We lost touch when I went to college, married & moved to Europe, and I was thrilled, upon returning Stateside, to get back in touch with him via Facebook. He always gave me many smiles, both in person & online. I still recall the weekend my parents were away, leaving me without a car to go to work. Tony graciously lent me his so I could go... & I still vividly remember that reverberator he had in it. I regret that we never had the chance to see one another again in person after all those years and send my deepest sympathy to his whole family. The world is a sadder place without him,

“ Karen and family, I'm truly sorry about the passing of Anthony. I've been in a state of shock ever since. Anthony was a great husband, Dad, brother, and grandfather. As you know I've been a friend of the family since I was a teenager and watched both of your children as infants They grew up to be fine men and wonderful fathers to their children That's because of the examples set by Tony He was a compassionate caring man to all and did a truly wonderful job caring for his Mom Most of all he loved you Karen more than words could ever say. He is missed by all and will never be forgotten Sorry I missed the services I was in a car accident and my car was totaled. I just got another car about 2 weeks ago I've been trying to call you Karen for I have a little something for you and a mass card I'm just reaching out to you now for I felt you needed time to grieve and try and make sense of all of this. There are no words to say to you that would make things better, for any time your strong faith and remembering all the good times you all spent together can help. One thing I do know is that the void that's left in your heart will always be there and it is okay to cry scream yell for that will help with the grieve and healing.
With my DEEPEST and heartfelt CONDOLENCES, EILEEN
