“ Jillian Matthews lit a candle in memory of James Brown

Jillian Matthews - January 26, 2016 at 04:59 PM

May this candle eternally burn in your honor and memory I went with green as a symbol of your love for the fighting Irish, love and miss you always, may you eternally rest in paradise in the arms of angels and in the company those you loved dearly who went before you with grandma, grandpa, morky, Uncle Bobby, Uncle Tommy, Uncle Donnie, & everyone else in your family that I know are happy to have you with them again and I know will keep you in good company and care for you in your after life. Until we meet again Rest In Paradise.

“ Some of my fondest memories with my dad were spent over fourth of July and Memorial day weekend, we'd hang out and barbecue and talk while powering through the Kroq A to Z Rock and Roll weekend, nonstop classic rock that he opened my eyes to and introduced me to and told me stories of the bands and their songs and because of him to this day that is the music I love classic rock and rock and roll. I must admit with all the history of the music he taught me, and my knowledge of it and love for it has turned me into a bit of a music snob, but he loved that we shared that and so did I. I was a daddy's girl through and through and i will always miss him but carry him forever in my heart and memories.
